

Entrance Rite Discernment Group Update

In the spring of 2018, the Entrance Rite Discernment Group (ERDG) proposed recommendations were shared with the Conference of Bishops and Church Council for feedback. With the affirmation of the Church Council, the proposed recommendations were sent via email to all rostered ministers in April with the hope of engaging the church in conversation around the specific proposed recommendations.

The ERDG received feedback from the Conference of Bishops and Church Council last spring, as well as rostered ministers, ecumenical partners, and other leaders throughout the church over the last few months. Additionally, engaging in conversations with full communion partners resulted in verbal and written responses (see appendix).

A final recommendation, reflecting the feedback that was received, was reviewed by the Conference of Bishops in October. The final recommendation, accompanying this report, addresses the three recommendations requested by the Church Council:

The Church Council authorized an Entrance Rite Discernment Group [CC13.11.65] to consider this question and to bring a recommendation to the Church Council for action by the 2019 Churchwide Assembly. Subsequently, the Church Council, responding to memorials offered at the 2016 Churchwide Assembly, also requested that the Entrance Rite Discernment Group provide recommendations on appropriate diaconal symbols and whether or not the constitutional language on representational principles [5.01.f.] should be altered.

As this piece of the work of the Entrance Rite Discernment Group comes to an end, it is the hope of the ERDG to create additional resources over the coming months, including the possibilities of an additional FAQ resource and a workshop template that could be used by synods in preparation for the 2019 Churchwide Assembly.

Members of the Entrance Rite Discernment Group include:

- The Rev. Robert Driesen and Bishop Mark Narum, co-chairs
- Bishop James Dunlop
- Sister Elizabeth Colver, Deacon
- Cynthia Gustavson (Church Council representative)
- The Rev. Dr. Kathryn Kleinhans
- Deacon Dr. Lake Lambert
- Dr. John Litke (lay leader)
- Dr. Susan McArver
- Deacon Louise Williams

Churchwide Office staff include:

Krista Anderson, Chris Boerger, Kevin Strickland, Greg Villalon, with Kathryn Johnson serving as ecumenical consultant and Julia Vega providing administrative support.

Report and Recommendations of the Entrance Rite Discernment Group

Background

From 1993 through 2016, the ELCA maintained four public ministry rosters: the roster of ordained ministers and three official rosters of laypersons – associates in ministry, deaconesses and diaconal ministers. Beginning in 2007, regional consultations, study and dialogue examined the work and ministry of the three lay rosters, and these conversations eventually led to a Word and Service Task Force, convened in response to Church Council action [CC10.11.64] taken in November 2010.

The Word and Service Task Force recognized and affirmed the essential value of diaconal service to the mission of the people of God in the ELCA. Through its work, the task force came to an understanding that this calling would be strengthened by the convergence of the three former lay rosters of the ELCA into a single redefined roster. Based on the recommendation of the Word and Service Task Force, the 2016 Churchwide Assembly authorized the establishment of a roster of Ministers of Word and Service, called deacons, effective Jan. 1, 2017 [CA16.05.11]. The assembly also endorsed the recommendation that the rite of consecration be used as the entrance rite for this new roster during an interim period of additional study, since two of the three rosters that combined to form the new roster of Ministers of Word and Service had used consecration as their entrance rite [CA16.05.11].

Early in its work, the Word and Service Task Force recommended that the question of a permanent entrance rite for this new roster be considered separately. The Church Council authorized an Entrance Rite Discernment Group [CC13.11.65] to consider this question and to bring a recommendation to the Church Council for action by the 2019 Churchwide Assembly. Subsequently, the Church Council, responding to memorials offered at the 2016 Churchwide Assembly, also requested that the Entrance Rite Discernment Group provide recommendations on appropriate diaconal symbols and whether or not the constitutional language on representational principles [5.01.f.] should be altered.

Recommendation for the Rite:

The Entrance Rite Discernment Group recommends the use of ordination as the rite of setting apart both ministers of Word and Sacrament and ministers of Word and Service.

Rationale: Theology and Practice

Baptism establishes our Christian identity. Through baptism, each Christian is called to a life of loving service in response to God's gift of grace.

Throughout the life of the church, some persons have been called to live out that loving service as a diaconal minister or deacon. While that diaconal ministry has taken many forms through the history of the church, it has always been marked by a call to service. As the Occasional Services for the Assembly companion volume to Evangelical Lutheran Worship notes, "Those called to the diaconate speak God's word to God's world, and in turn they speak also for the needs of God's world to the church."¹

The church historically has set apart such persons through a public rite for this ministry. By doing so, it does not confer a higher status upon these persons than baptism does, but rather witnesses that some individuals are called and appointed to specific public ministry. All deacons on the roster of the ELCA, wherever they serve in the church and the world, are responsible to empower, equip and encourage the whole people of God for their own daily baptismal vocation of service to the neighbor and care of creation.²

Since 2014, the Entrance Rite Discernment Group has studied the history and theology of ordination and consecration, the history and theology of diakonia, liturgical materials, and the practices of our global and ecumenical partners.

The New Testament does not present a single theology of a rite called ordination. Instead, it describes a pattern of the church setting individuals apart for specific leadership roles through the laying on of hands with prayer and the invocation of the Holy Spirit.³

The central actions in the rites named ordination, consecration and commissioning in this church are the laying on of hands with prayer and the invocation of the Holy Spirit, along with a charge to and promises by the candidate. While there are slight differences in the wording of the current rites, the intention is the same: to set persons apart for public ministry on behalf of the church.

North American Lutherans have typically limited the rite of ordination to ministers of Word and Sacrament, called pastors, and have especially associated ordination and inclusion on the ordained roster with the authorization to preside over the Sacrament of Holy Communion. This narrow usage of the term, however, is not common among our ecumenical partners or among global Lutheran churches.

The final report of the 2005 Lutheran World Federation consultation on The Diaconal Ministry in the Mission of the Church recommended ordination for diaconal ministers in order to “reflect that the diaconal ministry is an integral part of the one ecclesial ministry. Through the act of ordination the church recognizes the ministry of the deacon and prays to God for the gift of the Holy Spirit.”⁴ At the same time, the statement also affirms the “‘deaconhood of all believers’; that is, the calling of all the baptized to be involved in diakonia.” It also points to the importance of “seeing the diaconal and pastoral ministries as mutual and complementary, while having different emphases.”⁵

Many churches throughout the global Lutheran community ordain deacons, including the Lutheran churches in Germany, Sweden, Brazil, Estonia, Iceland and Indonesia. In addition, many of our six full communion partners use the term ordination to set apart deacons for public leadership roles in the church. Both The United Methodist Church and The Episcopal Church, the two partner churches with deacons whose roles roughly parallel those in the ELCA, ordain deacons. The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and the Reformed Church in America ordain deacons who hold primary duties in ministries of service and compassion. In the United Church of Christ, congregations may choose to ordain deacons and other leaders for service in the congregation only, while the Moravian Church in America ordains its deacons as one of the three traditional orders of ministry (deacon, presbyter, bishop).⁶

Recognizing that deacons and pastors are both engaged in ministries that are essential to the life of the church and its work in the world, the Entrance Rite Discernment Group recommends the consistent use of ordination as the rite of setting apart both ministers of Word and Sacrament and ministers of Word and Service.

Rationale: Roles and Responsibilities

The ELCA constitution (7.20. and 7.50.) specifies the distinctive roles and responsibilities of those on each roster. Pastors hold primary responsibility for preaching the Word, administering the sacraments, conducting public worship and providing pastoral care (7.31.02.). Deacons live out a life of prophetic diakonia that gives particular attention to the suffering places in God's world, equip the baptized for ministry in God's world in ways that affirm the gifts of all people, and are grounded in a gathered community for ongoing diaconal formation (7.61.02.). Those called as deacons thus proclaim the Word of God to the world and interpret the needs of the world to the church in ways that equip the baptized in their vocation of loving and serving the neighbor. Both rosters share in the responsibility to share knowledge of the ELCA and its wider work, identify and encourage qualified persons to prepare for the ministry of the gospel, and to speak publicly to the world in solidarity with the poor and oppressed, calling for justice and proclaiming God's love for the world (7.31.02. and 7.61.02.).

Whether one serves as a pastor or a deacon, ordination affirms the call of the church, commits the individual to carry out faithfully their responsibilities, and affirms the commitment of the church to accompany and support these ministers as they live out their public ministry. In addition, the term ordination is easily recognizable by, and can strengthen our conversation and collaboration with, our global and ecumenical partners.

Those previously commissioned or consecrated already have been entranced into the ministry of Word and Service. Ordination, commissioning and consecration are all valid and appropriate "entrance rites" for those beginning public ministry in the church. Since those already on the roster of Ministers of Word and Service have "entered" the roster, no further rite is necessary. In addition, all rostered deacons, both those already on the roster and those who will enter in the future, may rightly use the symbols recommended.

Whatever their particular role or context – whether deeply engaged in proclamation and service in non-ecclesial contexts or serving in congregational or other "church" settings – every rostered deacon of the ELCA has a twofold focus to serve the neighbor and to empower, equip and encourage the people of God for their daily baptismal vocation of service to the neighbor and care of creation. This ministry is understood to be "distinct from, alongside and in mutual complementarity with the ministries of pastors of the ELCA."⁷

The recommendation reflects a belief that a renewed diaconal ministry, designed to stand alongside the ministry of Word and Sacrament, will enhance this church's ability better to realize its mission today. "Such a diaconal ministry is biblically rooted, historically informed, ecumenically related and missionally driven."⁸

Recommendation regarding “Representational Principles”

The Entrance Rite Discernment Group recommends that for all purposes related to the implementation of the “representational principles” of this church, neither ministers of Word and Sacrament nor Word and Service be included in the category of “laypersons.”

Rationale

The Entrance Rite Discernment Group affirms the importance of allowing laypersons significant participation in the decision-making processes of this church, particularly as manifest by provision 5.01.g., which states that “at least 60 percent of the members of its assemblies, councils, committees, boards, and other organizational units shall be laypersons.” Because pastors and deacons are rostered ministers of this church, the Discernment Group recommends they be counted together. We encourage all entities within this church, including synods, to establish processes that will ensure that both deacons and pastors are included in leadership positions appropriate to their contexts.

Recommendation for Appropriate Symbols of the Roster

The Entrance Rite Discernment Group recommends that the entrance rite for ministers of Word and Service include the presentation of both a deacon’s stole and a cross.

Rationale

Deacons in the ELCA serve in widely varying ways. They may serve in the ministries of a congregation, synod or churchwide expression in areas such as teaching, administration, music or service, or they may serve in social services agencies or other ministries in the world. Historically, however, whatever their specific ministry, the service of the deacon has been rooted in the worship of the church.

All Christians are fed through the Word and sacraments of the Christian assembly and are thus strengthened for all dimensions of their vocational faithfulness, including their service in the world. For much of Christian history, deacons held important liturgical responsibilities in this worship.

The World Council of Churches’ document, Baptism, Eucharist and Ministry (1982) notes that in particular, “by struggling in Christ’s name with the myriad needs of societies and persons, deacons exemplify the interdependence of worship and service in the Church’s life.”⁹ Deacons are called to “give particular attention to the suffering places in God’s world; speak publicly to the world in solidarity with the poor and oppressed, calling for justice and proclaiming God’s love for the world; and equip the baptized for ministry in God’s world that affirms the gifts of all people.”¹⁰

By virtue of their vocation, therefore, deacons are distinctively positioned to contribute to the worshipping leadership of the Christian assembly. For example, in leading the intercessions and in preaching, deacons speak the needs of the world to the church, invite the assembly to join in prayer for those who suffer, and call upon those gathered to go out to serve. A deacon reading the gospel lesson traditionally has exemplified the close relationship between what God’s people believe and how they serve.

Welcoming reclaimed liturgical roles for deacons works in mutuality with the increased roles lay persons have assumed in worship leadership as part of 20th century liturgical renewal. Deacons, for example, may be among those who take on the roles of assisting minister, those serving communion in the assembly or those carrying the communion to those who cannot be present. With the formation of the Roster of Ministers of Word and Service, congregations may want to explore again ways appropriately to involve deacons and lay people together in roles of worship leadership, providing yet another opportunity to highlight the intersections of church and world, while also honoring both ancient and contemporary practice. While deacons live out their connections with the worshipping assembly in diverse ways, that relationship is essential to the understanding and witness of the deacon as public leader of the church.¹¹

Especially when leading worship, deacons may wear a diaconal stole. The deacons' stole is widely recognized ecumenically as a symbol of the diaconate. The stole, usually worn diagonally across an alb, emphasizes the importance of connecting worship and service and identifies the deacon as a public minister of the church.

Outside the assembly's worship, the cross is an appropriate symbol as it identifies the deacon as a presence of the servant Christ in the world. The Entrance Rite Discernment Group suggests that the appropriate Churchwide staff facilitate a conversation among deacons to propose a single cross design that can be worn as a pin.

Recommended Actions

The Entrance Rite Discernment Group recommends that the ELCA:

1. establish the rite of ordination as the entrance rite for deacons entering the roster of Ministers of Word and Service;
2. define the symbols of this ministry as a deacon's stole and a cross, both to be presented at the entrance rite;
3. direct the worship staff of this church to develop an appropriate rite and rubrics for the ordination of deacons;
4. direct the worship staff of this church to share information about the appropriate use of the deacon stole and to facilitate a conversation among deacons regarding a unified cross design;
5. charge the secretary of this church with proposing appropriate amendments to the Constitutions, Bylaws and Continuing Resolutions of the ELCA that will ensure that at least 60 percent of the members of its assemblies, councils, committees, boards, and other organizational units shall be persons who are not on the rosters of Ministers of Word and Service or Ministers of Word and Sacrament;
6. review the ELCA candidacy process for appropriate modifications as necessary;
7. charge the secretary of this church with considering and proposing possible amendments to the Constitutions, Bylaws, and Continuing Resolutions of the ELCA to accomplish its recommendations;
8. call upon this church to increase opportunities for lifting up, recognizing, fostering and encouraging recognition of deacons for the mission and witness of the church in the world;
9. continue funding for transition events and ongoing leadership and formation events to ensure growth and understanding of the roster of Ministers of Word and Service;
10. continue the preparation of appropriate and informative materials for the church's ongoing study; and
11. refer the resulting amending/amended documents to the 2019 Churchwide Assembly for approval as necessary.

Further Hopes and Dreams Going Forward

Diaconal ministry in its various expressions is central to the church's life and witness. The Entrance Rite Discernment Group anticipates far more than a change in governing documents is being envisioned. As Bishop William Gafkjen noted when introducing the proposal for a unified diaconal roster to the 2016 ELCA Churchwide Assembly, we are commending to the church,

*"an 'adaptive' change. ... rooted in what we believe and think about who we are and how we live and work together for the sake of God's mission in the world. [These recommendations are] about how we are equipped and called to live and serve together as God's cross-marked Spirit sealed believers, bearers and 'embodiers' of good news, the best news, in a torn, tumultuous and terrified world."*¹²

They are, in fact, a commitment to and hope for a renewed ministry of all the baptized, particularly as witnessed by diaconal lives.

What then, do we hope and dream will be the substantive changes to our faith communities? The Entrance Rite Discernment Group envisions a future where deacons and pastors are equally valued as leaders of the church, sharing one ministry of the gospel with distinctive and mutually complementary emphases. As we mature into a church with a strengthened diaconal leadership and more ardent diaconal witness, we also hope for a realized collegiality among all serving for the sake of the gospel, rostered and not.

*Consequently, this change ... will touch and transform how we understand and live into the vocation of every baptized person to follow Jesus in the way of the cross to care for and serve the neighbor, every neighbor.*¹³

We envision extended leadership, in new places and contexts, and in collaboration with our full communion and other ecumenical partners, that is not only visible in communities of faith but also visible in the world.

*[In 1993, the ELCA] adopted the document Together for Ministry. This fine document describes with clarity the missional movement of the church as church for the sake of the world. It lifts up the call of all the baptized to ministries of service in the world. ... We made these decisions on the front edge of the unimaginable acceleration of the changes, cultural and otherwise, that have placed parts of the body of Christ like the ELCA in unfamiliar, even precarious, positions, wondering how God is calling us to be church in new and shifting landscapes.*¹⁴

We envision renewed congregational vitality expressed in outward facing communities engaged in lively mission in the world.

We envision that integrating diaconal witness and leadership more deeply into the life of this church, will strengthen its diaconal commitment as an essential part of the Christian life. The life of faith is a relationship embracing both confidence in God, often manifest by creeds and confessions, and also response to God's call expressed in every Christian's vocation.

This future will only happen if this church, in all its expressions, consciously grows into it. We pray this church will reflect on these dreams and act on these matters for the sake of the gospel witness of the church in the world.

Conversations with Full Communion Partners
Concerning the Recommendations of the Entrance Rite Discernment Group

At the Program and Services Committee meeting on April 6, 2018, it was recommended to, “encourage the Entrance Rite Discernment Group to share the proposed recommendations throughout the church and to full communion partners for further conversation.”

Accordingly, all full communion partners were invited to respond to the “Report and Recommendations of the Entrance Rite Discernment Group.” This invitation continued conversations about diaconal ministry initiated at several points in the ELCA’s considerations of the ministry of Word and Service.

All the responses received were encouraging, alluding to analogous challenges and opportunities from the lives of the ecumenical partner churches and looking forward to continued collaboration. This positive character characterized responses from full communion partners whose own understandings and practice of the diaconate span considerable diversity.

Written responses were prepared by the Lutheran-Episcopal Coordinating Committee (LECC) and the United Methodist Church-Evangelical Lutheran Church in America Coordinating Committee (UMC-ELCA CC); these are included in this document. LECC’s response grounds its responsibility for continued engagement and conversation in the text itself of Called to Common Mission and concludes:

LECC is convinced that Lutherans and Episcopalians have much to learn from each other: our distinctive experiences of diaconal ministry, both historical and contemporary, offer wisdom which can enrich both churches.... Looking beyond the 2019 Churchwide Assembly decisions, LECC see both challenges and opportunities, and invites careful and hopeful collaboration toward our common flourishing.

The UMC-ELCA Coordinating Committee made a proposal which was accepted by the ERDG and is incorporated into the current recommendation:

In the “Hopes and Dreams” section, we suggest the following edit to the text in the penultimate paragraph: “We hope and dream for extended leadership, in new places and contexts, in collaboration with our full communion and other ecumenical partners, that is not only visible in communities of faith but also visible in the world.”

Churches with whom the ELCA is in full communion under A Formula of Agreement expressed support, noting that the “orderly exchange of ministers of Word and Sacrament” is not affected. “We would celebrate,” said a representative of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.); it “echoes trends seen also in the new Manual on Ministry” for the United Church of Christ. The President and General Minister of the UCC wrote:

I believe this is an important step to take. It honors deep commitments throughout the history of the church to set aside those called to diaconate work. In earlier times, monks, brothers, nuns, and various ordered ministries emerged for the sake of honoring those whose call was to serve.....And in our more recent times, the Deaconess movement was a way of recognizing the very special call to serve.

I fully support what the ELCA is doing and would be very open to engaging critical ecclesial and theological voices across the UCC in discussions about what a new pathway to diaconal ministry for us might look like.

Statement from the UMC-ELCA Coordinating Committee to Entrance Rite Discernment Group

Candler School of Theology, Emory University
Atlanta, GA
July 13, 2018

At its annual meeting, the UMC-ELCA Full Communion Coordinating Committee has reviewed the draft recommendations from the Entrance Rite Discernment Group (ERDG) of the ELCA concerning the ordination of Ministers of Word and Service and the symbols of this ordained office. The Coordinating Committee is exceedingly grateful for the opportunity to review these recommendations. We have considered the possible implications of these recommendations for our full communion relationship and await future action on these by the ELCA Churchwide Assembly in 2019.

The United Methodist Church has similarly undergone a process of discerning and defining its ministries of Word and Service, concluding with the decision to form a permanent order of Ordained Deacons, and thus views these recommendations for the ELCA with great interest, anticipation, and hope for future possibilities in our shared ministries.

The Coordinating Committee takes seriously its responsibility to discern and encourage new areas of partnership between our two churches and to increase opportunities for our churches to live more fully into the commitments expressed in our full communion agreement. Should the ELCA adopt the recommendations of the Entrance Rite Discernment Group, our Coordinating Committee understands that one of our responsibilities will be to further explore the possible ecumenical implications of any such action, including how our churches may recognize and share in one another's diaconal ministries.

We offer one minor textual change to the current recommendations from the ERDG to make an explicit recognition that this change in the orders of ministry in the ELCA will have important ecumenical implications. In the "Hopes and Dreams" section, we suggest the following edit to the text in the penultimate paragraph: "We hope and dream for extended leadership, in new places and contexts, in collaboration with our full communion and other ecumenical partners, that is not only visible in communities of faith but also visible in the world."

Again, we are grateful for the opportunity to discuss these recommendations and will continue to be in prayer for further developments.

Response to the ERDG Report and Recommendations

From the Lutheran-Episcopal Coordinating Committee
Meeting in Niagara Falls, Ontario, September 24-6, 2028

The Lutheran-Episcopal Coordinating Committee (LECC) notes with warm appreciation the work of the ELCA Entrance Rite Discernment Group, and has discussed its recommendations at several recent meetings. This committee has examined topics around diaconal ministry on multiple occasions over the twenty years of the relationship established by Called to Common Mission, and we have followed attentively the work of ERDG through its several stages.

Our responsibility to explore the diaconate rests on Called to Common Mission (CCM) itself. Noting that CCM did not “require” the ELCA’s ordination of its deacons, deaconesses, or ministers (the terms then current), CCM states:

Both churches acknowledge that the diaconate, including its place within the threefold ministerial office and its relationship with all other ministries, is in need of continuing exploration, renewal, and reform, which they pledge themselves to undertake in consultation with one another (Paragraph 9).

Responding to this commitment, LECC discussed the diaconate in the early years of the full communion relationship, and in 2003 commissioned a study document written by Madelyn Busse (ELCA) and Susanne Watson Epting (TEC), “The Diaconate and Call to Common Mission: Continuing Exploration of the Diaconate as Full Communion Partners.” Then in 2014, responding to a question referred to the Committee from an action of the Seventy-Seventh General Convention of The Episcopal Church concerning lay presidency, LECC included in its response consideration also of deacons. The response is available here:

This work has helped LECC to understand different routes by which our two traditions have come to this moment of shared new appreciation for diaconal ministry.

As the ELCA continues to make decisions concerning the ministry of deacons, including their entrance rite, LECC is committed to continuing to examine these questions, and offers its resources toward fuller discussion. LECC is convinced that Lutherans and Episcopalians have much to learn from each other: our distinctive experiences of diaconal ministry, both historical and contemporary, offer wisdom which can enrich both churches. As topics concerning the diaconal character of the church and its structures for diaconal service have become lively in many ecumenical settings, LECC is eager to be partner in this ongoing conversation. Looking beyond the 2019 Churchwide Assembly decisions, LECC see both challenges and opportunities, and invites careful and hopeful collaboration toward our common flourishing.
