It is a great day to be the Church! Yes, it is a very challenging day to be the Church but with challenges come opportunities to innovate and dare to be open to the Spirit's prompting and leading.

While I have been privileged to a Pastor in the ELCA for 33 years, I feel a strong sense of urgency to be the hands and feet of Jesus "for such a time as this"!

As a pastor I have discovered my gifts to be in development, visioning and strategic implementation. I am unapologetic in offering people an in-ramp to Biblical stewardship and I model strong stewardship in my own faith journey.

Throughout my life God has blessed me with the opportunity to walk alongside organizations facing significant change. These opportunities have equipped me to have conversations around identity and values of those institutions, and to facilitate creative solutions to problems that reflect those values.

We find ourselves as the institution of the church, facing many crucial changes. We are entering a time of economic uncertainty while wrestling to define the role of our church in a world that looks very different than the one that birthed this beloved institution. I believe the ELCA foundation can be a role model in this holy work. If accepted I would be honored to walk alongside it.
